A photograph of the Moor Park Golf Club clubhouse, a large, light-colored stone building with a classical facade, including a central pediment and many windows. The clubhouse is situated on a green lawn, surrounded by mature trees, some with autumn foliage. In the foreground, a well-maintained golf course with green fairways and sand traps is visible. The sky is clear and bright.

OUR CLUB

Founded in 1923, Moor Park Golf Club is home to two championship courses designed by the renowned Harry Colt, set against the backdrop of a magnificent Grade I listed clubhouse. Located within 300 acres of immaculately maintained parkland in Rickmansworth, Hertfordshire—just 30 minutes from central London—Moor Park provides an exclusive and highly accessible setting for corporate golf days, executive meetings, and client entertaining.

Beyond the fairways, the Club offers refined hospitality spaces, elegant private dining rooms, and impeccably manicured grounds, ensuring a seamless and sophisticated experience from arrival to departure. Every element of Moor Park is designed to support impactful corporate occasions, delivering an environment where business relationships are strengthened and lasting impressions are made.
